Description

An English-Style Ornamental Garden in Põlvamaa

Located near Räpina, Palusalu Garden is an approximately two-hectare English-style ornamental garden, the development of which began in 2004. The garden design incorporates trees, vines to climber, shrubs, climbing plants, and a wide variety of perennials. The species used in the landscape are mainly long-flowering, clump-forming perennials. Many heritage and old cultivars are featured. The garden is further enriched by spring-, summer-, and autumn-flowering bulbs.

Palusalu Garden features:

- a decorative kitchen garden
- shade borders
- sunny borders
- a rock garden
- a peat bed
- a heath garden area

The ornamental garden includes more than 2,700 plant taxa in total. Asters, heleniums, and phlox are represented by numerous cultivars, as are chrysanthemums, monkshood, and geraniums. Among bulb flowers, the garden boasts large numbers of tulips, daffodils, and naturalizing bulbs. The garden has been designed with all four seasons in mind — there is always something to see throughout the year.
